Bio:

　　I am a self-taught, full stack web developer from New Haven, CT. My past jobs have been in sales, management and education. I am very accustomed to working in teams, communication and leadership. I am self-driven and love to learn new things.

　　I began learning how to code with python and Django in 2018. I didn't get very far; back then it was only a curiosity and I had plans to join the Peace Corps in Mexico to work as a university teacher. During my time in Mexico, I began working with Ruby on Rails and JavaScript and quickly realized the endless possibilities that proficiency in these tools could bring. Since then, I have been coding every day and am looking for my first job, writing software.

　　If I seem a good fit for you, please give me a call or an email. I am open to any opportunity and am determined to succeed.
